

- A. Claude B., single; Jessie Edwards, whose husband's name is Burton Edwards; Oscar, who was single at the time he was last heard from; Isabel Freck, whose husband's name was Edward Freck; Daniel Wisotzkey, widower, whose wife died about ten years ago; Kathleen Drenning, whose husband's name is James Drenning; Ruth Barton, whose husband's name is William Bartch; and Leslie Wisotzkey, whose wife's name is Gladys Wisotzkey.
- Q. You state that Oscar Wisotzkey is missing. When and where was he last heard from?
- A. He was last heard from at Camp Dix, New Jersey, during the World War, in the spring of 1918.
- Q. Did you ever get a report from the War Department?
- A. There was an Oscar C. Wisotzkey listed as a casualty, but his address was given as the State of Oregon. He had been in the service before, and was a globe-trotter, and he may have re-enlisted from Oregon.

The last communication which we had from Oscar was a telegram sent to my mother prior to his sailing to France, which was about the spring of 1918.

- Q. Have any proceedings been instituted to have Oscar declared legally dead?
- A. Proceedings were instituted in York County Court, Pa., to have my brother declared legally dead, but because of expenses in connection therewith the proceedings were never completed, and an agreement was entered into by his brothers and sisters providing for the distribution of funds which he had on deposit in the Wrightsville National Bank. No formal decree has been entered by any Court declaring him legally dead.

To the General Interrogatory: Nothing further.
